This valuable program for high school students will be delivered by Nicola and Sean Walmsley ages 22 and 21. We have both completed high school and understand how intimidating it can be. For the students about to emerge into the real world the choices they make are very serious. They deserve more time and focus-and a broader perspective based on real world expectations-to bring them to a level of confidence and security. Considering this we decided to develop a program that complements the curriculum and focuses on Personal Development, Education and Career Planning.

Central to increasing your focus, productivity and success is the Walmsley & Co. framework to Bring Your Self to Your Work. It lays the foundation for a natural pattern of continuous looking within, growth and personal achievement.

- Ask the other's story, needs, aspirations
- Communicate your story
- Discuss needs and aspirations
- Create possibilities
- Build goals that contribute to shared priorities

- Know, and keep exploring your story
- Go inside, know your strengths and how to use them
- Condition your goals and resolutions into behavior
- Identify implement-able objectives that build towards your goals
- Keep context in mind
- Follow through
- Over deliver where you can
- Invest in success networks to deepen engagement and enthusiasm
